Wyoming Reads celebrates literacy

May 14 marked the 9th annual Wyoming Reads literacy program. Johnson County first grade students were among about 7,000 children across Wyoming who received a hardcover copy from Sue Jorgenson Foundation in Casper of one of six books including The Day the Crayons Quit by Drew Daywalt; Goldilocks and the Three Dinosaurs by Mo Willems; When a Dragon Moves In by Jodi Moore; See What a Seal Can Do by Chris Butterworth; Brave Young Knight by Karen Kingsbury; and Too Tall Houses by Gianna Marino.

Pastor Matthew Aspinall of Buffalo Wesleyan Church reads from Brave Young Knight by Karen Kingsbury at the Wyoming Reads event May 13 at Meadowlark Elementary School.

The children were also treated to hot dogs, chips and brownies provided by First Northern Bank and the Johnson County Library Foundation. Thanks to our volunteer readers—Johnson County Assessor Cindy Rogers, Gene Gagliano, Greg Haas, Steve Rzasa, Pastor Matthew Aspinall of Buffalo Wesleyan Church, and Tricia Berlinger of First Northern Bank.

Congratulations to Clara Bourgeois for winning the poster drawing contest for Wyoming Reads. Clara drew a picture of Too Tall Houses by Gianna Marino. Her poster will be put on display at Meadowlark next school year. The runners up were Izzy Haas and Lucas Peterson.
